Transformative Monitoring for Enhanced Equity Portal

The TransMonEE portal presents socioeconomic data on the condition of children and women, in Central and Eastern Europe and the Commonwealth of Independent States (CCE/CIS).

In 1992, UNICEF's Innocenti Research Centre established the TransMonEE database as a repository of a broad range of indicators on the condition of children. The data are used by government institutions, civil society, donors, and academia; they support evidence-based decision-making, and make it possible to analyze social policies and understanding the current trends in education, health, water, sanitation, and child protection. The data is updated by National Statistical Offices in the region using a standardized template for uniform data reporting.

Features

- Data-driven dashboard organized by socio-economic indicators
- Bold, easy-to-read, single-page format
- Responsive layout to analyze data on a mobile phone
- Cross-browser compatibility with no plug-ins required
- Easily downloadable content to be shared in reports

Benefits

- Reliable access to key performance indicators in a uniform data repository for all CEE/CIS countries
- Timely access to data trends spanning the period of 1992 to 2016 for key indicators
- Data analytics used to convert large volumes of data into visualizations on key trends and gaps
- Tracking of the pulse of key performance indicators in the region to inform social policy formulation and child development programming
